

I've Grown Plenty, Thanks!

A New Musical Traumedy Your Therapist Would Approve

A woman walks (and sings) into her new therapist's office hoping to fix her love life - and accidentally uncovers the hilarious, horrifying layers of trauma that have been running the show all along.

About the Show:

Ever wanted to sit-in on someone's therapy session? This unafraid one-woman musical starts as a hilarious, all-too-relatable plunge into the horrors of modern dating. But when our protagonist finally dares to ask, "What's wrong with me?!?" she's forced to navigate messy situationships, brutal screenshots, and unfiltered vulnerability - with the audience as her therapist and raw laughter as her lifeline.

About the Artist:

Maria Bartolotta is a performer, writer, and spiritual firecracker whose work blends sharp humor with raw vulnerability. Her one-woman show has been described as Fleabag meets Sondheim on a bad Tinder Date. She's toured nationally, creating space for women to laugh, cry, and heal in real time. Through music, storytelling, and fearless honesty, Maria brings a powerful voice to the stage - one that champions connection, catharsis, and the beauty of being deeply, unapologetically human.

Performance Highlights:

- Awarded Performer of The Year for StL Fringe 2025
- Featured in the Hollywood Fringe Festival
- Selected for Gotham Storytelling Festival 2025 in New York City
- Multiple Performances at Caveat New York City (with an open invitation to return)
- Sold-Out Premiere-Run in St. Louis
- Praised by audiences as "hilarious, healing, and heartbreakingly honest"
- Resonates deeply with women navigating love, trauma, and self-worth
